Brief Description of the Event:

Handholding, an annual programme of the department, allows current students to be addressed by a distinguished alumna. This time, the event was held online due to the examination constraints of the outgoing semester VI batch and inclement weather. In this edition of Handholding, the department was privileged to have Ms. Navnita Chakraborty, an alumna of the 1999-2002 batch and the current Business Head of Zee Bangla, as well as the Chief Content Officer of Zee TV. In her presentation, she outlined the career prospects for students pursuing journalism and political reporting after graduation, and explained the role of larger politics in cultural content. In the interactive session, the speaker answered students' questions on career, work-life balance, choosing to work after post-graduation, and financial stability, among others.

Outcome of the event: This allows students to gain insights into career options, understand conventional and unconventional career trajectories and strengthen the department's outreach to the alumnae. The speaker also provided ideas for applying to media companies and explored the possibility of paid internships after graduation.
