

A Session with the Gutli Man of India-Report

Date: 23rd July, 2025

Venue: Shri Shikshayatan College

On 23rd July 2025, our college had the privilege of hosting Mr. Jasmit Singh Arora, widely known as ‘The Gutli Man of India’, for an engaging and thought-provoking awareness programme. The session was organised by Committee of Environment and Sustainability (ComEnS). A passionate environmentalist and social reformer, Mr. Singh is known nationally for his innovative initiative of collecting discarded mango seeds (gutlis) and turning them into grafted saplings for free distribution among farmers. His vision is rooted in environmental sustainability and farmer welfare, encouraging a shift from water-intensive paddy farming to more climate-resilient and income-generating mango cultivation.

The session was graced by our respected Principal, Dr. Tania Chakraverty and witnessed active participation from 62 students and 20 faculty members. Mr. Singh eloquently spoke about his journey from being a medical professional to becoming a changemaker in rural Bengal. He shed light on the ecological importance of mango trees and the long-term benefits of sustainable farming practices. He also urged everyone to contribute to his mission by collecting and preserving mango seeds during the fruiting season, highlighting how such small steps can collectively lead to significant environmental impact.

The programme sparked considerable enthusiasm among both students and faculty. Many expressed a keen interest in initiating a seed collection drive within the college premises and their respective localities. Mr. Singh’s message was clear, compelling, and deeply inspiring—reminding us all that environmental change begins with conscious, community-led action. The event concluded with a vote of thanks, acknowledging Mr. Singh’s invaluable contribution and urging all present to become stakeholders in his visionary mission.
