- BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE EVENT: Ink of April, Unveiling the Genius of Spring-Time Prodigies – the very event was a unique collaboration that the P.G. English Department seeks every month with Imprint: The English Literary Society. As a larger part of the 'Author(s) of the Month Presentation Series', the Department puts up literary contributions, student researches, creative enactments, medleys on the authors, their literary lives and their significant works. The true spirit of April's "ink" was justified by the performance on the part of the students.
- OUTCOME: The event served the vital purpose of a Post-graduate department's collaboration with a students' creative society where the students utilize their skills every month to showcase the literary genius of several authors – individually or collectively – who share their birth anniversaries on that particular month. The trilingual performance delved deeper into the prospect of 'unveiling the genius of spring-time prodigies'.
