Brief Description: The Study Circle provides students in the department with a space to organise semi-formal programmes on political issues. In this edition, students of semester 1 created an engaging group discussion on the 2024 Broadcasting Bill, debating the merits of regulation versus the dangers of surveillance. Eight participants explored the various facets of the bill, highlighting the need to tackle fake news, allow for regional vernacular diversity, the dangers of punishing independent creators and the misuse of governmental power. The event organisation, including the format, scripts, arguments and policy analysis, were completely done by the students.

Outcome: Like Harmony, Study Circle is a student-led initiative. Developing their organisational skills, the programme enables students to build their critical thinking skills, the ability to analyse policies, and their public speaking skills, while linking concepts from their curriculum to everyday politics.
